Benchmark ICFs accommodate custom home design

"A great experience with Benchmark," says homeowner

After witnessing the cost effective success of Benchmark Insulated Concrete Forms (ICFs) in other local projects, homeowner Chad DeBlieck chose Benchmark Foam to supply the ICFs for his family's new home construction. DeBlieck is familiar with Benchmark ICFs as he is the manager of a Benchmark ICF distributor.

Out-of-the-box approach to ICF

Curved ICF wall gives patio an impressive entrance

The versatility of Benchmark Foam ICF Insulated Concrete Forms was recently proven when contractor A.J. York designed, then constructed exterior curved concrete stairs for his customer. Wishing to eliminate the usual weight and pressure against the building structure, York went one step further - his design specified Benchmark Foam's geof foam encased in concrete for the stair steps.

"We used Benchmark Foam's ICF and geof foam simply because it made the project so much easier," said York of A.J. York Construction, Watertown, South Dakota.
